Roads to Success

Throughout 2024, the Office of Childhood (OOC) will share "Roads to Success," a collection of stories from professionals and higher education institutions. Stories from professionals feature achievements from people working in childhood programs such as home visiting, early intervention, child care, Head Start, preschool, and afterschool. Stories from higher education institutions highlight colleges and universities who are using innovative methods to support and grow the early childhood workforce. There are many roads to success. It is important to highlight the varying and unique pathways professionals take and how higher education programs can pave the way. These stories are also available at the bottom of the Early Connections webpage.

This month's Road to Success focuses on Missouri Western State University, located in St. Joseph, Missouri. Missouri Western collaborates with early childhood professionals and initiatives in the community including Success by 6, which works to prepare young children for future success.

Success by 6 holds monthly child care director meetings, offers community resources, works with Head Start, and offers trainings for child care providers. Missouri Western and Success by 6 recently opened a lab school on campus to support classroom exposure and community need. Recently, Missouri Western faculty started the St. Joseph chapter of the Missouri Association for the Education of Young Children (MOA/YEC) that has organized events for the larger St. Joseph community and participates in recruitment events at local high schools.

Missouri Western also provides an option for students to obtain micro-credentials related to early childhood education. This micro-credential consists of three early childhood courses, and an additional option is offered for students to take an hour of credit of coaching, which allows students to provide coaching in an early childhood classroom. Missouri Western has examined their current degree programs and is working to develop a new child development degree.

that supports the program specific needs of early childhood educators, home visitors, and family services professionals currently in the field. They are working to meet the needs of current Head Start teachers working in the classroom who have a desire to obtain a non-teaching credential bachelor's degree.

UPDATED Child Care Subsidy Information

Income eligibility for the child care subsidy program is based on several pieces of information, including the federal poverty level (FPL). These federal data are updated annually, which can result in an adjustment to eligibility income limits for the child care subsidy program.

The FPL update for 2024-2025 resulted in a slight increase to the family size/income limits, which means a few families may be eligible who were not eligible previously.

The FPL update is effective November 1, 2024, for families who apply for child care assistance on or after this date.

NEW! New Research on Parents as Teachers (PAT) Parent Education Program

A research paper was recently published in the Early Childhood Research Quarterly that shows participation in the Missouri Parents as Teachers (PAT) parent education program is positively associated with third-grade math and ELA proficiency.

This research contributes to the literature on the importance of home visiting programs and is one of the few studies examining the effects of a voluntary, universal parent education program. Click here to view the full article.

The research comes as the Parents as Teachers Program is celebrating 40 years! NEW! Child Care State Plan Waiver 2025-2027

On October 7, 2024, ODC submitted a waiver request to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families (ACF). The waiver requested additional time to implement the requirements under the Child Care and Development Fund (CCDF) State Plan for 2025-2027.

This waiver requested more time for activities including pay on authorized enrollment, pay prospectively, and cap family co-payments at 2%, which will require additional funding to implement.

ACF has given states an additional two years (August 1, 2026) to come into compliance with these requirements.

REMINDE!R: Health Effects of Lead in Children

Lead Infographic - Heavy Metal with Hidden Consequences by Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services

There is no safe level of lead in the body and children who appear healthy may have elevated blood lead levels. Children under the age of 6 are most susceptible to the effects of lead. Even very low levels of lead poisoning can cause unseen symptoms, such as behavior and/or learning problems, lower IQ, hearing problems, slowed growth, and anemia. At very high levels, lead causes seizures, coma, and death.

If these effects are noticed in a child, have a conversation with the parent(s) and educate them on lead poisoning. Encourage a blood lead test, and to follow up with their pediatrician.

UPDATE: Dolly Parton's Imagination Library

Monthly MOPD Quick Tip

Child care providers are required to have a CPR/First Aid certification. If a course cannot be found on the schedule in the MOPD System using the regular event search, Reach out to a CPR/First Aid trainer using the trainer directory to request a training.

After logging in to the MOPD system, use the left navigation and select "Search Trainer Directory". Using filters, enter a county or select multiple counties, and enter CPR in the Keyword search. This will locate trainers able to deliver CPR and First Aid in the chosen area.

For full instructions, visit the MOPD Instructions under the topic "Search and Register for Training", step 4. For questions, contact MOPD@desa.mo.gov.

Spotlight on Success

Spotlight on Success aims to share stories from local programs that are building community partnerships in order to strengthen and coordinate childhood programs.

In September of this year, the United Way of Central Missouri and Central Missouri Community Action Agency brought together multiple partners, providing two days of Early Childhood Training in Moniteau County at no cost to attendees. Over those two days, attendees earned up to 10 clock hours learning about communication, the power of play, CPR/First Aid Certification, and much more.

Partners at the two-day training included the Department of Social Services and University of Missouri Extension, who provided four of the clock training hours. They presented Building Strong Families-Communication, a training on quality communication with families to build strong relationships and influence children's problem-solving skills, ability to relate with peers, and their level of emotional distress. They also provided a training titled Power of Play, where participants learned the importance of play for children's development, developing specific skills, and how to create an inclusive environment for children to learn through play.

Office of Childhood staff were also on hand to inform attendees on child care licensing requirements and the Missouri Professional Development (MQPI3) System for those who may wish to become a child care provider. Michael CPR Foundation provided CPR/First Aid training to those who chose to participate on the second day of the training to earn six clock hours. A total of 13 people participated of the two days of training.

Theresa Versluis, Vice President of United Way of Central Missouri said, "The process to develop and plan these two days took about a year, and we were so excited about the turn out and the attendee feedback. We would like to do this type of training again as well as offer it in other counties. If others are interested in doing similar programs, we'd be happy to share our information."

The Preschool Development Grant Birth to Five (PDG B-5) provides funding over three years to coordinate a more effective, high-quality early childhood system that better prepares Missouri children for success.

Each month, the OOC hosts a live webinar to provide updates and information about the PDG B-5 to stakeholders.
